

Alda Bardhyli is graduated in literature at Tirana University. Since 2000 she has been working as a culture journalist and later as an editor in widely read newspapers such as 'Albania', 'Dita' (Day) and currently 'Shqip' newspaper. She has given a great contribution in the publication field, first as director at "55" Publishing House and currently as editor-in-chief of 'Saras' Publishing House. She is the editor of a series of historical and literary books, the translator of Anna Goodbersen in Albanian language and currently she is leading a series of TV panels about discussing about literary issues. She has a great experience in television as a scriptwriter of "Top show" and 'E diell' programs, broadcast by Top Channel. Author of a series of lectures on the media, she is also the chief editor of "Saras" literary magazine which explores under a new perspective, the literary trend in the country and encourages the aesthetic debates in this field.